

Trumant AND Adelong Times

The untimely death of Mr. Clive Cunningham on Saturday night last cast a terrible gloom over the community. He was one of the first lads from here to enlist on the outbreak of war, and fought right through with a creditable war record. He was extremely popular amongst all his comrades and was always of a wonderfully cheerful disposition. He is the eldest son of those estimable people of Sharp's Creek, Mr. and Mrs Cunningham. For some time past, however, he has not been at all well, and worried considerably. The utmost sympathy is extended to his relatives so well known here. .

<http://nla.gov.au/nla.news-article139287060>

The Coroner's verdict in connection with the death of Cleive Cunningham, who was found dead in a private house in Adelong on Saturday night, April 17, with a rope around his neck and bending on his knees, was that death was due to strangulation, self imposed. The Coroner informs us that the depositions he took had been forwarded to Sydney before the Press were able to get a copy.

<http://nla.gov.au/nla.news-article139292091>