

Officers of the 12th Battalion during WW1 Pictorial Honour Roll

Lindisfarne RSL, Tasmania

Compiled by Evan Evans

In total there are 197 men named on the 12th Battalion Officers Pictorial Honour Roll (PHR), with 144 including a photo and 52 named without a photo. There are no details as to the mode that the 12th Battalion Officers PHR was subscribed to and manufactured. There are multiple copies of the board that have survived including: 1. Lindisfarne and 2. Burnie RSLs, and 3. Maryborough Military Museum, Qld). The board was compiled by each of the officers or officer's families providing photos of the men. Officers for which a photo was not available are listed on the bottom of the Honour Roll. As such, officers from interstate are more likely to be only named. Cases where the officer died in service may have resulted in some families not being able to or being willing to provide a photo. Similarly, some officers may not have been included to provide their photos as a result of their WWI experiences. I presume that the board was paid for by subscription with multiple prints being made. Certainly, there would have been provided to the key supporting RSLA clubs and the senior commanding officers. I would expect that prints were also made available to at least some of the officers or their family.

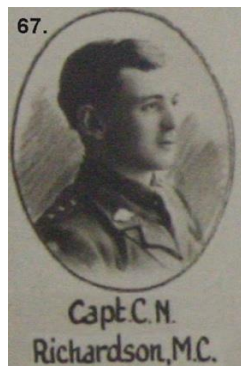

In the following pages I have provided the men's photos and details on A3 sized pages so that they can be presented in the same order as on the PHR. The numbers on the board correspond to the numbers on the following pages. For some men I have highlighted their names in yellow are of particular interest due to their actions during WWI, Australian contributions after the WWI or both. I would recommend accessing the Virtual War Memorial Australia web site (VWMA.org.au) to find out more about men such as Major General Sir John Gellibrand KCB, DSO+Bar, PSC (co-founder of legacy) and Lieutenant Frank Marriott who served as a Tasmanian Parliamentarian despite being blinded in 1917. These are but two men with interesting and extraordinary stories. I am sure that many of the other men also have worthy stories that are awaiting to be told.
