Background

Coinciding with the Centenary of Anzacs our incentive behind the series of biographical publications is the Adelaide University Football and Cricket Club's desire to honour our players who served in the Great War (1914 - 1918). These brave men put on hold their academic, professional and sporting careers for King and Country in the name of peace and freedom. The AUFC/AUCC WW1 Memorial Committee is endeavouring to identify every one of our players who served and prepare life stories on all. This is to ensure their sacrifices and further contributions to society will be recognised by future generations.

On Anzac Day 2015, the Centenary of the Gallipoli landing, a memorial plaque was unveiled on the Adelaide University Oval Pavilion and this was followed by the erection of a picket fence between the pavilion and the scoreboard with each picket bearing a plaque with the name of an AUFC/AUCC player who served.

The following documentation relates to the life of Clarence Swann Padman. It is compilation of information and photographs collected from a variety of historical sources.

Early Life

Clarence Swann (Clarrie) Padman was born on the 25th May 1893 at Middleton, SA, the second son of Samuel Waterhouse Padman and Annie Elizabeth (Lillie) Ragless.

South Australian Register (Adelaide, SA: 1839 - 1900) 30 May 1893

Samuel worked for the South Australian Insurance Company and later for the National Bank (Orroroo) and at the time of Clarrie's birth he was in business at Middleton, SA. He was a lay preacher for over 50 years.

Clarrie's siblings were Vernon Ragless (b 1891), Maud Lilian (1895), Eric George (1896), Alethe Dorothy (b 1898) and Marsden Waterhouse (b 1899).

Schooling

Clarrie commenced his schooling at Middleton where he gained a certificate of merit in 1905. He then moved to Adelaide and boarded with an aunt to attend Norwood School. He was living at Kent Town when he was awarded a first class certificate for the South Australian Sunday School Union scripture examinations. In 1907 he received an honourable mention in the "Eight Hours Day" prize essay competition.

The judges deemed the essays by S. Padman, of Norwood Margery Godless, of East Adelaide school, worthy of honorable mention. marked: - "We regret that three prizes were not offered, as among so many competitors was difficult to single out one only as enitled to a prize.

In December 1907 Clarrie topped the Education Department Monitors' Examinations (Class I), Norwood and he was a Senior Monitor at the School in 1908. In December 1908 he gained his Junior Certificate (passing five subjects - English History, Geography (credit), arithmetic, algebra and geometry) and he passed the Pupil Teacher entrance examinations.

Clarrie completed his secondary education at Adelaide High School (Pupil Teacher School). He gained his Senior Certificate in December 1909 passing six subjects (English Literature, Modern History, Latin Arithmetic and Algebra, Geometry (credit) and Trigonometry). He also passed subjects in the Art Examinations (First Grade Plain Geometry (June 1909), First Grade Model Drawing (December 1909)).

Clarrie was a member of the AHS first eighteen in both 1909 and 1910. He was a member of the Present team who played the Past students in a match in July 1910.

In 1910, Clarrie and RB Young became the joint editors of the Adelaide High School Magazine and their debut edition was well regarded.

The Advertiser (Adelaide, SA: 1889 - 1931) 25 March 1910

Among school agazines that of the Adelaide High School takes a foremost place. The March issue, in which the new editors, Messrs. C. S. Padman and R. B. Young, make their debut, is well got up, containing, in addition to reading matter, several illustrations from photo blocks. The articles, which are exclusively from the pens of the students, are exceedingly creditable to the contributors and to the school.

In March 1910 Clarrie was promoted from Pupil Teacher Second Grade to Pupil Teacher Third Grade. He passed Intermediate Perspective in the Arts Examinations in June 1910 and First Grade Freehand Drawing in November 1910.

Evening Journal (Adelaide, SA: 1869 - 1912) 19 December 1910

The second volume of our magazine is now complete, and the thanks of the school for the excellence of the paper is specially due editors, Clarence S. Padman and Ralf. B. Young. They have worked very hard, and the magazine has fully maintained its reputation under their supervision. Great interest has been taken in maintaining a correspondence with schools in other parts of the Empire, and our students have exchanged letters, magazines, those of (1) The Skinners' Company's School for Girls, (2) Winchester High School for Girls, (3) St. Nicholas School, Nottingham, (4) Sneiton Trust School, Nottingham, (5) Sheffield Pupil Teachers' Centre, (6) Lichfield Boys' School, and (7) Holt Secondary School, Liverpool.

Clarrie was in the Senior Cadets for four years. Later letters published in the AHS Magazine show that Clarrie was known to his school friends as "Paddy".

The Adelaide High School Magazine.

C. S. Padman.

Mr. Clarence S. Padman, whose photograph we print above, was the editor of the A.H.S. Magazine, in conjunction with R. B. Young, during 1910, and all our readers will readily admit that the earnest and enthusiastic manner in which he carried out his duties was largely instrumental in making the Magazine so popular during last year.

The present editors are fully aware of the high standard of excellence the paper reached, and they desire to record their appreciation of their predecessors' efforts, and they feel that, to maintain this, most hearty co-operation and support will be necessary from the various grades of the school. Mr. Padman is a member of the staff of the Norwood School, and we wish him the success he righly deserves in his new sphere.

South African Cricketers in Australia.

By "Rollo."

HE South African cricketers, or "Springboks," as they are commonly called, nave concluded their first Australian tour, and although they have not attained such success as they had anticipated, they have done well when the many disadvantages against which they had to contend are considered.

At first there was some difficulty in monetary matters, and at one time it was thought that they would not make the tour this season. But upon Sir Abe Bailey, the rich South African, guaranteeing to make up any financial loss the team might suffer everything was arranged, and the South Africans set out for Australia. They constituted a very fine team both in batting and bowling, their batting force containing some of the finest bats in the world, and their attack consisting of the dreaded "googly" bowlers, who in 1907 created such a sensation throughout the cricket world when touring England. One thing seemed to be lacking however, a reliable fast bowler, who could bowl a good length for an hour or more without rest on our "billiard table" wickets.

When the Springboks arrived here they were received by the South Australian Cricket Association, and after a few days' practice presented themselves for the first match against South Australia. In this contest they "made good" their debut on Australian wickets, for after the small score of 133 in the first innings they compiled 507 in the second innings to the South Australians' 183 and 176, Nourse making 201 not out and Stricker a faultless 146. The "googlies" did good work in this match, the only man on our side able to play them being Crawford and Schwarz, the principal "googly" bowler for the Springboks obtaining 11 wickets at an average of a little over 11 runs apiece.

The South Africans then proceeded to the other States, and were defeated in Melbourne

University

Clarrie commenced studying for and Arts degree at the University of Adelaide in 1912 and gained a Division 1 pass in Education in his first year. His University Registration Card (Registration No. 2400 below) shows that he passed English Language and Literature, Latin I and Physics I in 1913 and Latin II, English History, Psychology and Physics I in 1914. He passed Intermediate Measured Freehand in the Arts Examinations in December 1913. The Physics I he passed in 1914 was undertaken at the School of Mines.

Athletics

In June 1914 Clarrie was second to P.T Smith in the 220 yards flat race at the Adelaide University Sports.

Cricket

Clarrie played cricket for the Adelaide University Cricket Club B Grade in the 1914/15 season. It appears that he was called upon to fill in during the holidays as the B Grade played with only seven men in their match in January 1915 against North Adelaide. Clarrie scored a duck and bowled taking none for eighteen.

Boat

The Daily Herald (Adelaide, SA: 1910 - 1924), 25 August 1915, listed CS Padman on the "Oarsmen's Roll of Honour" for the University Club. However no other evidence has been located to suggest that Clarrie rowed for the University and it is probable that this should have been Edward Clyde Padman, BA, LL.B.

Early Career

Clarrie was an assistant teacher at the Norwood School the Norwood School in 1911 and 1912.

He played tennis for Middleton and for the Kent Town Methodist Church in the United Church Association. He would vacation with his parents at Middleton. He played tennis for Kent Town in the Kensington Gardens Association in 1914.

In January 1915 Clarrie was appointed an Assistant Teacher at Sturt Street School however it is possible that he did not teach at the school as by March 1915 he was appointed to the same role at Moonta District High School. He boarded with Mr R Learmond (the Mayor of Moonta) and quickly integrated into the community.

Clarrie played in the tennis tournament at Moonta in May 1915 and became a member of the Methodist Church Choir and Superintendent of the junior department of the Kindergarten School.

World War I

Clarrie enlisted on the 6th June 1915 (Service Number 6891). He was 22 years and one month old, 5'5¼" tall, weighed 122 lbs and had fair hair, blue eyes and a fair complexion. He was appointed a Private in the 8th Field Ambulance.

On the 9th June 1915 a valedictory social was held at the Methodist Church Sunday School and on the 10th June 1915 an afternoon tea was held at the Moonta High School. Both functions were to say farewell to Clarrie who was described as an enthusiastic and capable teacher. Later in June, Clarrie was given a farewell in Kent Town.

VALEDICTORY.

In the kindergarten room of the Methodist Sunday School on Tuesday evening a valedictory social was tendered Mr C. S. Padman, who has enlisted for the seat of war. Mr Padman is a teacher in connection with the High School, a member of the Church Choir, and superintendent of the Junior Department of the Kindergarten School. The military authorities have required his services in the direction of the Army Medical Corps and leaves here for Mitcham Camp on Saturday morning. The first part of the evening was devoted to a first-class musical programme and parlor games. Subsequently the assembly adjourned to an adjoining room where supper, toasts, and speeches were in prominence. The first toast were in prominence. The first toast honored was "The King," proposed by Mr G. N. White and responded to by the singing of the National An-them, and the chairman (Mr W. Aplin) in submitting "Our Guest" forth in defence of home, of liberty, made reference to the virtuous and of the Empire. They prayed qualities of Mr Padman. R. Vercoe, of the Junior Department, wished him bon voyage and a safe return, and Miss O. Gurner in a very neat speech presented Mr Padman with a wristlet watch for duties rendered. In responding Mr Padman expressed his kindness for the presentation and the way in which he had been received. The evening was brought to a close by the singing of Auld Lang Syne. The following items were given during the evening:—Overture, Miss O Gurner; songs, Misses D. Arthur, H. Lawrie, M. Trathen, B. Ellery, and Mrs Aplin; monoloque, Mr R. Vercoe; recitation, Miss B. Carthew; violin solo, Mr J. H. Prisk; and cornet solo, Mr G. N. White.

Yesterday afternoon Mr Padman was entertained by the school teacchers at afternoon tea. Mr Hand (head teacher), on behalf of the staff, congratulated Mr Padman for his noble response to duty's call, and said the teachers were proud to know that one of their number should go them again, if not they would keep trict was an unexpected acquisition in memory his noble act of loyalty on account of the dearth of Sunday and keen sense of duty. At supper toasts of "The King" and "The members leaving for the front" were nonoured at the instance of Mr. A. Set. Lilleerapp responded on behalf of his comrades and himself.

Adelaide High School Magazine – Items relating to CS Padman

On November 8 two other Old Boys about to depart for the front, in C. S. Padman (who left the School in 1910) and E. B. Silver (who left in 1912) attended the assembly. Both are in the A.M.C.

Pte. Clarence S. Padman was a pupil teacher at the School from 1908 to 1910. In his last year he was one of the Editors of The School Magazine. Clarence was successful both in athletics and in the schoolroom.

Clarrie embarked from Australia onboard the 'Geelong' on the 18th November 1915 and appears to have come down with influenza on the journey or shortly after his arrival in the Suez Canal area as he was transferred 'sick' to the 2nd Casualty Clearing Station, Ferry Port, Egypt on the 5th February 1916.

On the 12th February 1916 he was discharged to duty at Serapeum, Egypt. He was then transferred to the 15th Field Ambulance at Tel el Kebir, Egypt on the 1st March 1916. In May 1916 it was reported in the South Australian papers that Clarrie had entered into the Imperial School for officers training at Zeitoun, Egypt. However there is no evidence in Clarrie's service records to support these reports.

The Register (Adelaide, SA: 1901 - 1929) 8 May 1916

News has been received that Pte. C. S. Padman, who left Adelaide for the front last November, has entered the Imperial School for officers training at Zeitoun (Egypt), with a view to obtaining a commission. Pte. Padman was previously a teacher in connection with the District High School at Moonta.

CS Padman - 1916

On the 19th June 1916 Clarrie embarked onboard the 'Canada' at Alexandrina, Egypt and disembarked on the 28th June 1916 at Marseilles, France. In late August or early September 1916 he was transferred to the 8th Machine Gun Coy.

Adelaide High School Magazine – Item relating to CS Padman

A very interesting letter was received at the School from Capt. Armitage, late of the 10th Infantry, but now of the 50th. He thinks that, of the many old A.H.S. boys in the 10th Infantry, he alone was transferred to the new battalion. Harold mentions the following familiar names of those of whom he had recently met and who were in good health at the time: - Col. Coghill, Clarence Padman, Eric silver, Colquhoun (transferred to a new M.G. Co.), Sergt. R. McLaren, Cpl. Charles Mugford, Gill, Virgo, Davies, Currie, 2nd Lieut. S. W. Coombe, Capt. H. N. Henwood, Capt. W. McCann, and Hewish.

Death

Clarrie was killed in action on the 29th November 1916 at Guedecourt and was buried between Guedecourt and Le Transloy, 3½ miles north of Combies. After the war Clarrie was reburied at the Bancourt British Cemetery (Plot IV, Row K, Grave No. 1), France.

"Family Notices" The Register (Adelaide, SA: 1901 - 1929) 22 December 1916

FOR KING AND COUNTRY.

PADMAN.—On the 29th November, killed in action somewhere in France, Clarence Swann (Clarrie), dearly loved second son of S. W. and A. E. J. Padman. Brierley, Walkerville road, St. Peters, late of Middleton, aged 23 years.

Clarrie was clearly well respected by his former school mates at AHS and a number of items were published in the AHS School Magazine relating to his death and burial place.

Adelaide High School Magazine – Items relating to CS Padman

The following extract from a letter to Lieut J. E. Pearce from his brother is of interest, as it refers to an old high School boy:-

"Before this you will have the details of Clarrie Padman's death - one of the noble men gone out during the present war. You knew him better than I, but my memory recalls his little twinkling legs in the halfback lines during his football days. So he died a true sport, a good comrade, and, what is a bigger thing in these days, a fine Christian gentleman. It's fellows like Paddy who can least be spared, but living or dead his influence cannot fail to be felt. And after all we must all face realities; this life is but our infancy and death merely an episode in eternity.

"The deaths of some fellows are the most forcible proofs of their sterling qualities. And so it was with Paddy. There is something peculiarly pathetic about this little figure, small in stature but with the heart of a lion, taking his stand at the creases in this big game. Steady as a rock he plays each ball, his attention focussed on what he has in hand, until time is called and his match is won. The onlooker the man who is said to see most of the game - is thrilled by the splendid courage of it all, and I, from my position in the stand, take off my old hat, crying, "Well played, Paddy; well played!"

The late Private Clarence Swann Padman entered the School in 1909, and passed through the Senior and Higher Public Classes. He was a leader amongst the boys, both in school and on the playing fields. Clarence was one of the first editors of The School Magazine, and one of the best "wing men" that we had on the football field. Old boys still remember his exhibition of the game on our first visit to Melbourne and Ballarat. His influence was for good amongst his fellows, and had he been spared we could not but feel that a glorious future lay before him. Clarence entered the Army Medical Corps, and after spending some time in Egypt was transferred to a machine gun section in France.

Eric silver, in a letter from france, says: "A few days ago a friend and I went to try to find the grave of Clarence Padman. The dAy, unfortunately, was not a good one, for we had several falls of snow during our tramp. Unfortunately, we were unsuccessful. I managed to run up against Frank Potts the other day, and had a good yarn with him. I've also seen L. Carthew, E. Mattner, Jack Shepherd, and L. Schmidt: all as fit as fiddles, and with an extra pound or two of flesh on their bones."

Extract of letter from Private Eric B. Silver :-

"I met Ted Mattner, Lance Carthew, Jack Shepherd. They were all well then. Only a few days ago I discovered Ted again. He is well, and has three stripes and a Military Medal to his credit. Leo von Bertouch was also there. Lance and jack were up to the 'pits' with their 'pea-shooting gangs.' They expect to come down for a week's rest when the next relief of gunners go up, so I'm hoping to see them again. Yesterday I saw Captain Will. McCann, M.C. He is looking very fit, almost twice the size he was at A.H.S. Re Clarry Padman's grave. Another friend of Paddy and I, by a stroke of good luck discovered Clarry's grave after having searched for three solid hours in the vicinity, and finally giving up the job as hopeless, something seemed to lead us straight to the spot as we made our way back to the duck-boards over a veritable sea of shell holes, partially covered in thawed snow. Herbert Pierce has secured a post in divisional H. Q. His knowledge of languages is being made good use of there. I'm told."

The headmaster of the Norwood Public School said of Clarrie "He was beloved by everyone. His manly character, his chivalry, his attention to duty, his consideration for others, coupled with a deep sense of his responsibility, made him a general favourite".

"THE LATE PRIVATE C. S. PADMAN." Chronicle (Adelaide, SA: 1895 - 1954) 6 January 1917

THE LATE PRIVATE C. S. PADMAN. Private C. S. Padman, whose death was announced yesterday, was born at Middle-ton on May 25, 1893. Having passed through the local school, he continued his studies at Norwood public school, at the Adelaide High school, and later at the Adelaide University. Entering the service of the Education Department, he taught at the Norwood school under Mr. F. J. Pavia for two years, and took great interest in the Kent Town Methodist Church and Sunday school work, and captained the local tennis team. Mr. Pavia writes that "He was beloved by everybody. His manly character, his chivalry, his attention to duty, his consideration for others, coupled to a deep sense of his responsibilities, made him a general favorite." In January, 1915, he was transferred to Moonta District High School, where he speedily interested himself in religious and social circles. Enlisting in June, 1915, he embarked with the 8th Field Ambulance in November of that year, and whilst in Egypt attended the Imperial school for officers at Zeitoun, where he qualified for a commission with much credit. In June, 1916, the Stir Field Ambulance was moved to France. He applied for, and was granted, a transfer to a machine gun company a few months later, and it was while with this company that he was killed in action on November 29. His loss is sincerely mourned by a wide circle of friends. He was one of three brothers on active service.

Unveiling of PROTOGRAPH.

At the Moonta Methodist Sunday School on Sunday afternoon last, the unveiling of a photograph of the late Pte C. S. Padman, who was superintendent of the Junior Department of the school, took place before a large number of teachers and scholars. Mr E. F. Gurner (superintendent of the school) presided. Long before the announcement of the death of Pte Padman the department decided to hang his photograph with that of Pte Reece Vercee, who succeeded him as superintendent of the department and who is on active service, on the walls of their room Now, instead of this being carried into effect with joy and pride of heart, it must now be hung with profound sorrow and regret. It only seems a little while since he was given a farewell at the school when every encouragement was given him for the duties which were ahead of him. The branch of service which Pte Padman connected himself with was that of the A.M.C. simply because it afforded him the opportunity of coming in close touch with the sick and wounded so as to relieve their sufferings, and what was more, impart spiritual aid and advice to those who were passing into the dark chambers of futurity. i'te Padman's death was mourned by all, but there is consolation in the fact that all the labor done by him throughout the school was not done in vaiu and though it seems hard to lose him in the prime of manhood. They must say as Job did of old "The Lord gave and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord."

Immediately after the final assembly of the school the assistant superintendent (Mr W. A. Edge) unveiled the photograph. which was draped with the Union Jack. owing to the superintendent (Mr E. F. Gurner) not being familiar with the work of Pte Padman. In performing the ceremony. Mr Edge said if Mr W. Aplin, the late superintendent, was present he would be able to pay a higher tribute to the departed soldier's sterling qualities than he could. He admired him as a young man. He had a quiet and unassuming way of working, was not ostentatious and did not let his right hand know what his left hand doeth. He did not seek praise, but did all work willingly as his duty. When he heard the call of service he went readily and the school had the satisfaction of knowing that he went into battle fully equipped, not only with physical armour, but also with the armour of God. The man who goes with the helmet of Salvation will always be successful even though he pays the supreme sacrifice; hecause, Better the Christian, better the Soldier."

The mayor (Mr R. Learmond) heartily endorsed the remarks made by Mr Edge. From the moment Pte Padman arrived in the town until his departure to camp he had lived with him, and he could thus speak of him as a quiet man. He found him to be a gentleman, and the longer one was associated with him the higher would they think of him. Pte Padman came to his home as a stranger and never once did he regret opening his door to him. He was a conscientious and a good living young man—a character worthy of emulation by the young men, and a character which was a valuable acquisition to any town

Rev Robinson said no one had known Pte Padman as long as he had. He was a fine young man and came from good Christian parents. It was men of Pte Padman's type who are laying their lives down for them. The motives which prompted them to go to the war were good. They loved not the pomp and glory of war, nor did the primitive instincts of the man of war appeal to their conscience, they went and did their duty in accordance with the text, "Greater love hath no man than this that he lays down his life for his friends." He expressed the hope that the sacrifices of such men are not in vain, but out of which will come a saner, wiser, and purer world. Messrs J. T. Hicks and L. Bennett also made fitting reference to the dead soldiers' splendid qualities as a man and a teacher.

In addition to grieving parents and siblings, Clarrie left his fiancé, Daisy Steadman. Daisy never married and spent every Anzac Day for the remainder of her life at Horseshoe Bay where she and Clarrie had spent time prior to his departure to the war.

Clarrie's personal effects (Wallet, Photos, Testament, Note Book, Military Certificate, Metal Watch and Films) were returned to Australia onboard the 'Miltiades' and were received by his father on the 30th July 1917. He left an estate valued at £300.

Two of Clarrie's brothers, Vernon Ragless Padman and Eric George Padman were on active service at the time of Clarrie's death (see below for details).
